Roller's Gelding's Form Allowed Him to Win the Jersey Central Stakes.

BOQUEFORT WAS A WINNER.

Terrifier Took the Fifth from Westchester, with Blitzen Fifth.

ELIZABETH RACE TRACK, April 17. -The track was in much better condition to-day than any one expected it would be. It had dried out consider ably and looked as though it had been given a new top-dressing of sand. Underneath, however, it was a trifle sticky and made the track dead and slow.

The programme was a good one, and the various events included the Jersey Central Stakes, a half-mile dash for two-year-olds. There were originally twenty-three starters carded to go, but nearly half of these were withdrawn.

The sport promised to be excellent, and the people evidently thought so, for every train going to the track was crowded to suffocation. The weather was a trifle raw, and the east wind that blew across the stand at times had a chill to it that reminded one that Winter was still lingering. The racing began with a dash of six furiongs, with such sprinters as Bolero. Walcott, Lyceum, Logan, St. Denis and Bolero, chiefly on his showing with Birocco a few days ago, was the favor-Walnut was the second choice on Logan third.

Lycaum got the best of the start and Sims had no difficulty in keeping him in front to the end, though Logan gave him a hard race. Sims simply outrode Shields. Lambley rode Bolero in miserable fashion and finished third. Walott was going easily at the head of the stretch, but directly Fitzpatrick called him he stopped.

"Pa" Bill Daly dumped the talent in the second race. The smart people figured that the race lay between Kirkover and Rhono, and they backed their espective choices heavily. Roquefort, however, upset all calculations by getting the lead on the turn and winning in canter. Kirkover, the favorite, beat Rhono for the place, being driven out. McMurtry and Virgle finished close up. Aleppo's work, according to the rail birds had been something phenomenal, and he was reported to have all the speed of his sire, Brittanic.

Hyan, at 5 to 1, won very handly, showing that conditioned horses have the best of it at this season of the year. Welsely was second, Gertie got away badly, but showed a great burst of speed and landed third. She was quoted in some books at 50 to 1.

Byrne is a heavily built man past middle age. Necessarily his pace was not rapid and he arrived at the corner several yards behind the man he wus pursuing.

Here he met with a puzzling situation. There were several persons running about. Singling out the man he supposed he had started to pursue, he soon overtook and brought him to a hait.

This man was Sebastino Speretto, twenty-five years old, of 13 Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn.

yn.
"What's the matter?" asked Speretto of "What's the matter?" asked Speretto of the officer, in good knglish.
"You'll had it on the sidewalk back here," replied the officer.
Roundsman Campbell came up at this junc-ture and took Speretto in charge. A crowd scon gathered, among the number being Charles Meyer, of 845 Wallabout street. Brooklyn. Stepping up to Speretto and peering into his face Meyer remarked:
"That's the man. I saw him do the shoot-ing."

"That's the man. I saw him do the shooting."

Both men were taken to the station-house.
The body of the dead man was identified at young fellow who made money easily and dressed well.

Close beside the body a 32 calibre revolver was found, with only one chamber ellipty.

No revolver was found on speretto, nor could the smell of powder be detected on his hands or clothing.

Meyer says be was standing close by when the shooting occurred, and is positive speretto is the murderer. Several shots, he says, were exchanged, when speretto threw his revolver away and flod.

In the Tombs Police Court this morning Speretto looked frightened, but declared his innocence.

He said he had spent the day with his brother-in-law, who lives in Eleventh street. They were walking through Grand streat when the shooting occurred, got frightened and ran away.

The police are not sure that Speretto is the man they want.

It was drawn at Guttenburg's dieration, and the clause which permitted horsemen is good standing to race over the Long Branch truck was the straw that broke the Board of Control's back. Their resolution wasts perforce be reschaded, or else the Monmouth people would have to go out of the combination. Rather than have such a powerful club as Monmouth leave the trust, the Board of Control rescinded its boycotting resolution. The Guttenburg horsemen will rejoics, for there are many horses at the hilltop track that can win purses on the more was a mere caricatine, so as to show to the pairs and the flow of the fourth ventrice. The jurymen passed the segments of the brain about in a gingerly way, examining them curiously.
